Useful informations :

- The current temple has a capacity of 60 people, so it is impossible for the assembly of practitioners to gather in a place other than the refectory.

Ceremony in the refectory due to lack of space

- Classes are currently taught in teachers' rooms.
- Meals are served, either outside or in the refectory that is presently used as the gompa.
- Yongdzin Rinpoche's living quarters are difficult to access for him because the stairs are very narrow.

The Triten Nobuste Association aims to support existing communities in Asia, referring to the pre-Buddhist tradition: the Bön. It supports the Triten Norbutse institution, founded in Nepal in 1987 by Yongdzin Tenzin Namdak Rinpoche to preserve this ancient Tibetan and Himalayan tradition, the Yungdrung Bön.

This institution is destined to become an important international center for all monastic and secular communities.

Construction of a new temple at Triten Norbutse Institution

The building was designed to optimize the building surface while respecting the harmony of the site. This required the strengthening of seismic constraints. Particular attention has been paid to sanitation to preserve the environment. Drinking water will be filtered and stored in tanks of adequate capacity to meet the needs of the entire community.
